

U. S. Press Welcomes News That Three New Destroyers Are To Be Built

The announcement some days ago that three of the destroyers held up last year would be immediately laid down has been welcomed in the editorial columns of leading newspapers. Regret is expressed that nothing further in the way of naval construction is being done.

"It is welcome news that President Hoover has ordered the construction of three of the additional London treaty destroyers," comments the Washington Star. "They represent one-half of the number of destroyers on which construction was suspended by the presidential order of a year ago. * * * Half or even a quarter of a loaf is better than no fleet bread, but the modest three-destroyer building program now to be undertaken still leaves the United States far behind the materialization of the rights it enjoys under the Anglo-American-Japanese treaty of 1930. The pact allotted this country the privilege of constructing approximately one hundred new units. With the three destroyers just authorized, the Navy will have under way only nineteen of these vessels, consisting of eight destroyers, seven eight-inch-gunned 10,000-ton cruisers, three submarines, and one 13,800-ton aircraft carrier. In other words, a bare twenty per cent of the London treaty Navy has so far been laid down."

"So long as our European 'friends' keep up their armed strength this country cannot remain defenseless," states the Salt Lake City Tribune. "It just isn't the proper thing to do if we hope to maintain harmony in the family of nations. They all want to be gun-toters, so we just have to fall into line. * * * It is announced that the three ships are to be started on their way to 'provide jobs for the idle.' What nonsense. They are intended to bring the American fleet up to a standard of effectiveness. The jobs merely follow as a matter of course. And if an unemployment problem did not confront the nation we probably would build more than the three vessels which are considered urgently necessary at this time."

"To aid the American navy and the idle, to strengthen security on the seas," states the Miami, Fla., Herald, "work will be begun at once on three destroyers at the Boston, Philadelphia and New York yards. * * * None have been built since 1920. And why not, if authorized and permitted and essential."

"This action," declares the Troy, N. Y., Times, "does not mean increase of naval armament by the United States. The vessels to be constructed like five others now in process of construction will replace destroyers that have become obsolete. Since 1920 the United States has not completed construction of any destroyers. Under the Washington and London treaties this country is authorized to have destroyers totaling 150,000. * * * It appears that this nation is setting an example of real arms reduction which thus far has not received the attention it deserves, but which European nations should accept as an example to be followed."

The Lytton Report

(The third chapter of the report of the Lytton Commission points out that the murder of Captain Nakamura, of the Japanese General Staff, by Chinese troops was viewed by the Japanese as the culminating incident of a longer series of events which showed the "utter disregard of the Chinese for Japanese rights and interests in Manchuria". The first investigation of the killing was deemed by the Japanese consul as "indecisive and unsatisfactory". What followed is related below from the Lytton report.)

Having been informed of the seriousness of the situation in Manchuria, Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang instructed Governor Tsang Shih-yl and General Yung Chen to conduct without delay and on the spot, a second inquiry into the Nakamura case. Learning from his Japanese military advisers of the deep concern of the Japanese military over this affair, he sent Major Shibayama to Tokyo to make it clear that he wished to settle the case amicably. Major Shibayama arrived in Tokyo on September 12, and stated, according to subsequent press reports, that Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang was sincerely desirous of securing an early and equitable termination of the Nakamura issue. In the meantime Marshal Chang had sent Mr. Tang Er-ho, a high official, on a special mission to Tokyo to consult with the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Baron Shidehara, in order to ascertain what common ground might be found for a solution of various pending Sino-Japanese questions concerning Manchuria. Mr. Tang Er-ho had conversations with Baron Shidehara, General Minami and other high military officials. On September 16 Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang gave out an interview to the press which reported him as saying that the Nakamura case, in accordance with the wish of the Japanese, would be handled by Governor Tsang Shih-yl and the Manchurian authorities, and not by the Foreign Office at Nanking.

The second Chinese commission of investigation, after visiting the scene of the killing of Captain Nakamura, returned to Mukden on the morning of September 16. On the afternoon of the 18th the Japanese Consul called upon General Yung Chen, when the latter stated that Commander Kuan Yu-heng had been brought to Mukden on September 16 charged with responsibility for the murder of Captain Nakamura, and would be immediately tried by a military court-martial. Later it was made known by the Japanese, after their occupation of Mukden, that Commander Kuan had been detained by the Chinese in a military prison.

Consul-General Hayashi, Mukden, was reported on September 12-13 to have reported to the Japanese Foreign Office that "an amicable settlement would probably be made after the return of the investigators to Mukden", especially as General Yung Chen had definitely admitted that Chinese soldiers had been responsible for the death of Captain Nakamura. The Mukden correspondent of the Nippon Dempo Service telegraphed a dispatch on September 12 stating that "an amicable settlement of the alleged murder case of Captain Shintaro Nakamura of the Japanese General Staff Office by soldiers of the Chinese Reclamation Army Corps is in sight". Numerous statements of Japanese military officers, however, especially those of Colonel K. Doihara, continued to question the sincerity of the Chinese efforts to arrive at a satisfactory solution of the Nakamura case, in view of the fact that Commander Kuan, alleged to have been responsible for the death of Captain Nakamura, had been taken into custody in Mukden by the Chinese authorities, the date of his court-martial having been announced as to occur within a week. Since the Chinese authorities admitted to Japanese consular officials in Mukden, in a formal conference held on the afternoon of September 18, that Chinese soldiers were responsible for the death of Captain Nakamura, expressing also a desire to secure a settlement of the case diplomatically without delay, it would seem that diplomatic negotiations for attaining a solution of the Nakamura case were actually progressing favorably up to the night of September 18.

Results of Nakamura Case

The Nakamura case, more than any other single incident, greatly aggravated the resentment of the Japanese and their agitation in favour of forceful means to effect a solution of outstanding Sino-Japanese difficulties in regard to Manchuria. The inherent seriousness of the case was aggravated by the fact that Sino-Japanese relations just at this time were strained on account of the Wanpaoshan affair, the anti-Chinese riots in Korea, the Japanese military manoeuvres across the Tumen River on the Manchurian-Korean frontier and the Chinese mob violence committed at Tsingtao, in protest against the activities of the local Japanese patriotic societies.

Captain Nakamura was an army officer on active service, a fact which was pointed to by the Japanese as a justification for strong and swift military action. Mass meetings were held in Manchuria and in Japan for the purpose of crystallising public sentiment in favour of such action. During the first two weeks of September the Japanese press repeatedly declared that the army had decided that the "solution ought to be by force", since there was no other alternative.

The Chinese claimed that the importance of the case was greatly exaggerated, and that it was made a pretext for the Japanese military occupation of Manchuria. They denied the contention of the Japanese that there was insincerity or delay on the part of the Chinese officials in dealing with the case.

By the end of August, 1931, therefore, Sino-Japanese relations over Manchuria were severely strained in consequence of the many controversies and incidents described in this chapter. The claim that there were 300 cases outstanding between the two countries, and that peaceful methods for settling each of them had been progressively exhausted by one of the parties, cannot be substantiated. These so-called "cases" were rather situations arising out of broader issues, which were rooted in fundamentally irreconcilable policies. Each side accuses the other of having violated, unilaterally interpreted, or ignored the stipulations of the Sino-Japanese agreements. Each side had legitimate grievances against the other.

The account here given of the efforts made by one side or the other to secure a settlement of these questions at issue between them shows that some efforts were being made to dispose of these questions by the normal procedure of diplomatic negotiation and peaceful means, and these means had not yet been exhausted. But the long delays put a severe strain on the patience of the Japanese. Army circles in particular were insisting on the immediate settlement of the Nakamura case, and demanded satisfactory reparation. The Imperial Ex-Soldiers' Association, among others, was instrumental in rousing public opinion.

In the course of September public sentiment regarding the Chinese questions, with the Nakamura case as the focal point, became very strong. Time and again the opinion was expressed that the policy of leaving so many issues in Manchuria unsettled had caused the Chinese authorities to make light of Japan. Settlement of all pending issues if necessary by force, became a popular slogan. Reference was freely made in the press to a decision to resort to armed force, to conferences between the Ministry of War, the General Staff and other authorities for the discussion of a plan with this object, to definite instructions regarding the execution, in case of necessity, of that plan to the Commander-in-Chief of the Kwantung Army, and to Colonel Doihara, Resident Officer at Mukden, who had been summoned to Tokyo early in September and who was quoted by the press as the advocate of a solution of all pending issues, if necessary by force, and as soon as possible. The reports of the press regarding the sentiments expressed by these circles and some other groups point to a growing and dangerous tension.

Admiral Upham Speaks

The early history of the United States, in which the leaders of the Nation learned through insult and destroyed shipping the necessity of a strong Navy, was the theme of a speech delivered by Rear Adm. Frank B. Upham, USN, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, over the radio Oct. 22.

"You will have noticed," Admiral Upham declared in conclusion, "that our statesmen used every expedient to gain fair treatment of our trade and shipping before they resorted to a navy. The march of world events inexorably forced them to build a navy. With every passing decade other events forced them to maintain that Navy. Finally all recognized that it was indispensable to both national security and national prosperity. This Navy, though not always as large or as well-equipped as Navy men could wish, has maintained a standard of loyalty, devotion, efficiency, and success unsurpassed in history."

Win Bridge Championship

Baltimore.—The first annual Maryland State Champion Bridge Tournament conducted under the auspices of the Baltimore Bridge Teachers' Association ended on the evening of Oct. 22 with the contract team-of-four championship cup going to a Baltimore Bridge Club team, three of whose members have direct army connections. Members of the winning team were Lt. and Mrs. Robert I. Carter of Ft. George G. Meade, Mrs. Allan Rutherford, wife of Lt. Col. Allan Rutherford, Inf, on duty with the Baltimore Reserve units and Mrs. J. D. Cairns, civilian of Baltimore.

Standing and scores of the teams which qualified for the finals:

- 1st—Baltimore Bridge Club, Lt. Robert I. Carter, team captain, 18 matches.
- 2nd—Washington Bridge Team, Mr. A. P. Stockvis, team captain, 17½ matches.
- 3rd—Baltimore Bridge Club, Mrs. Alex Randall, team captain, 13½ matches.
- 4th—Bridge Club of Maryland, Mr. Cahn, team captain, 11 matches.

The contract pair championship was won by Mrs. M. R. West and Mrs. R. C. Jones, of Washington, D. C., with a score of 92½ match points. Runners-up were Mrs. J. R. Emery and Mrs. Pierce Marston of Baltimore with 88 match points.

Lt. Alfred M. Greunther, Field Artillery, well known tournament director, acted as tournament manager.

The large cup won by the winning team of four is to be competed for annually.

The Engineer School

Ft. Humphreys, Va. — The Annual Field and Barrack Inspection of the 13th Engineers, by Col. E. H. Schulz, commandant of the Engineer School, was held on Saturday, Oct. 22, 1932. The inspection was preceded by a review and presentation of athletic trophies.

The inspecting Officer was accompanied by military attaches from six foreign countries. Among those present were: Brig. Gen. Francisco J. Aguilar, Mexican Military Attaché; Brig. Gen. Francois Pilon, French Military Attaché; Lt. Col. Marco Pennaroli, Italian Military Attaché; Lt. Col. Emmanuel Lombard, French Asst. Military Attaché; Capt. Enrique A. Prieto, Cuban Military Attaché; Capt. Joaquin Plannell, Spanish Military Attaché; Capt. Count G. F. von Rosen, Swedish Royal Horse Guards; Lt. Herbert Sachs, Swedish Royal Horse Guards, and Lt. Emilio Calderon, Mexican Asst. Military Attaché.

General Fuqua's Address

Cooperation between branches was stressed by Maj. Gen. Stephen O. Fuqua in an address at the Infantry School yesterday. Reference was made to the use of Artillery by the Japanese Army at Shanghai and the need for close liaison between branches which developed there.

"One of the major problems for all armies today," declared the Chief of Infantry, "is how to improve the team work between the Infantry and the Field Artillery. It is reported that in the early stages of the recent Shanghai war there were difficulties in obtaining liaison between Japanese Infantry and the Artillery—with resulting heavy losses in attack. In our service the two branch schools are constantly studying this question of liaison. We know that there is a great improvement over the system used in the World War and in the training of our officers. The liaison furnished here by the 83rd Field Artillery at maneuvers has often been reported to me as being especially effective. We should all be familiar with liaison and in search for methods to improve it. Although liaison is charged to the supporting arm, the supported arm, Infantry, is vitally concerned therewith and should study its difficulties, in order to help reduce them in action. This is being done in the form of a continuing study by our Infantry Board."

Cooperation With Air Corps

"Another important phase of team work is that of cooperation between the Air Service and the Infantry," he continued. "Improvements in the radio equipment of the higher echelons will doubtless reduce the difficulties incident to this team; however, since the Infantry battalion radio set cannot send to, or receive from airplanes, the battalion is forced to rely upon panels and drop and pick up methods of communication. These should be practiced at every opportunity. Furthermore, I feel that all line officers should seize every opportunity presented to take to the air, to practice following a cross country route on the map and to study the ground from above. Such practice will be invaluable when an aerial, command, or staff reconnaissance is possible and furthermore will assist officers in the reading of aeroplane photos which will be invaluable when an aerial, command, or staff reconnaissance is possible and furthermore will assist officers in the reading of aeroplane photos which will frequently substitute for maps in the future. I consider the proximity of the Air Corps Tactical School at Maxwell Field as a very happy arrangement in that it facilitates the establishment of close and cordial relations between two of our major branches and this will result, I believe, in improved schemes for cooperation between the soldier in the air and the soldier on the ground."

In commenting generally on the question of cooperation, General Fuqua stated:

"Two of the principles, underlying Tactics and the use of weapons are:

"1st—A determined enemy in an organized defensive position cannot be 'shot out of the position'. Individual men or Tanks (Infantry or Cavalry) must actually advance into the position to secure victory.

"2nd—All weapons must be so utilized as best to assist these individual men (or tanks) to get forward. This, (the

President Hoover's Stand on National Defense

President Hoover is emphatically on record in his campaign speeches and statements in behalf of National Defense. Besides his Navy Day statement (printed in adjoining column) with the pledge to build up the Navy to the limits fixed by the London Treaty should the disarmament negotiations fail, Mr. Hoover, particularly in his Detroit speech on Oct. 22, expressed views which leave no doubt of the policies he proposes to pursue. In this connection he said in Detroit:

"In the present disturbed state of the world we must not further reduce our defenses without a general agreement on reduction of arms."

That statement was made when the President was discussing the threat to our defenses contained in Governor Roosevelt's assertion that, if elected, he would reduce Federal expenditures by $1,000,000,000 a year.

"If the Governor means to reduce Government expenditures $1,000,000,000 below ordinary routine costs * * * it is only fair that the American people should know where and how he is going to accomplish it," the President said. * * * routine expenditures for the current fiscal year are estimated at $3,647,000,000. Of these, $1,980,000,000 are for the public debt and certain trust and refund services to which the Government is obligated, together with expenditures upon the Army and Navy. * * * Thus, the Governor must find a cut of $1,000,000,000 out of the remaining $1,667,000,000—which, in the President's opinion is impossible on the face of it.

The action of President Hoover in placing Army and Navy expenditures in the same class with the public debt charges will be very reassuring to friends of National Defense.

Governor Roosevelt who pledged himself to speak on National Defense during his latest campaign trip, failed to refer to the subject except in the pledge to cut ordinary expenses by a billion dollars, and such a cut necessarily would have to be applied to the appropriations for the Army and Navy. In the declaration of his proposal to institute a 25 per cent slash, Mr. Roosevelt was standing by the planks in the Democratic platform referring to economy, and doubtless had in mind the false assertion in that platform of a National Defense "burden fast approaching $1,000,000,000," an estimate exactly 35 per cent wrong.

Mr. Garner's attitude toward the services is known by his attack upon the Army and Navy last winter. Whether he remains as Speaker of the House of Representatives, where he can aid and abet Mr. Collins and others, or whether he becomes Vice President and wields the gavel over the Senate, he will undoubtedly press opposition to present National Defense. Even before Mr. Garner was nominated by Messrs. McAdoo and Hearst for the Vice Presidency, the Uvalde statesman favored a combination of the War and Navy Departments. Doubtless Mr. Roosevelt will urge this proposal, especially in view of its advocacy by the Hearst newspapers, which from time to time in the past have enumerated as one of their objectives, "army, navy and aviation, all united under a Secretary of National Defense."

Mr. Hoover's attitude toward National Defense has been made clear. It leaves ultimate mission of every other branch) is prescribed definitely in our F.S.R. It requires team work within the branch and between branches and is the ultimate test of training."

Tables of Organization

The tables of organization of the Infantry regiment were discussed by General Fuqua.

"The R-2 tables of organization," he stated, "sometimes referred to as the 'Summerall Organization,' which provides for 16 machine guns per Infantry battalion, a separate machine gun company of 16 guns in the regiment, and an increased number of Infantry cannon, were approved Nov. 29, 1930. However, these tables are now in abeyance until

Navy Day Statement

President Hoover has issued the following Navy Day statement:

I take the occasion of Navy Day to remind the nation that the national defense is the first and most solemn obligation placed upon the Federal Government by the Constitution. Our people have ever been lovers of peace, and they have consistently pursued a policy designed to preserve national rights by peaceful negotiations wherever possible, rather than by resort to arms.

This administration has spared no reasonable effort to bring about an agreement of all nations upon a reduction of arms, upon the ratios agreed upon at the London naval conference. Our patience in these negotiations has never for a moment jeopardized the safety of the United States.

These efforts are making progress. If these efforts finally fail, we shall be compelled, by reason of the disturbed conditions prevailing throughout the world and the necessity of protecting American commerce, to build our navy to the full strength provided in the London agreement, equal to that of the most powerful in the world. I need scarcely suggest the vast expenditures that would be involved by that necessity, or the blow that it would deal to one of the most cherished aspirations of our people.

no doubt where he stands.

Mr. Roosevelt and all Congressional candidates should present their views with exactitude. Friends of National Defense are urged to wire and write them insisting that they do so without further delay and without any evasion.

In his Navy Day proclamation, as Governor, Mr. Roosevelt gives no intimation of the policies he will pursue with regard to the strength of the Fleet. His proclamation reads:

"The United States Navy plays a role supplemental to that of defense. The American fleet, its component ships and collectively, serve this country as envoys of international amity and promoters of good-will."

"This phase of the activities of the Navy constitutes in itself a definite complement to the sense of duty of the crews manning our ships."

"The officers and men of our Navy are ever aware that the protective function of the United States Navy is not confined solely to a safe-guarding of American lives and interests."

"Their conception of duty, so often illustrated in the past, imposes upon them the protection and saving of human life in any and all emergencies, they have time after time given convincing demonstration of this comprehension of their glorious calling; in helpful action they have written their own testimonial."

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor of the State of New York, do hereby proclaim and set apart Oct. 27, as

NAVY DAY

"And I urge the people of New York to honor the officers and men of the United States Navy upon this day by a display of the American flag and to reflect upon the gallant traditions that have been such an inspiration to the men of our day."

"I ask you as well that whenever possible visits be made to ships of the fleet that a more intimate acquaintance be formed of the real Americans who man them."

July 1, 1933. Since the approval of these tables, new developments in automatic and other weapons and in motor transportation have occurred. It is certain that these new developments will render it desirable to modify those tables.

"The subject is now one of the important studies before the Infantry Board; however, in considering the subject of organization it should be borne in mind that no solution will be ideal for all theatres of war. If we maintain an elastic, well balanced machine with the elements essential to the principal theatres only, we can readily adjust for the special weapons needed later as that need arises. All emergencies in the past have

Voting in Texas

Dallas, Tex.—A determined movement to give retired officers living in Texas the right to vote and hold office is now being waged under the leadership of Col. P. J. Hennessey, USA-Ret.

The Dallas Journal of Oct. 21 reports as follows:

A brief campaign in behalf of the constitutional amendment to be voted on Nov. 8 giving retired officers and men of the army, navy and marine corps the privilege of voting and holding office will be conducted by Col. J. J. Hennessey of San Antonio, retired army officer.

Colonel Hennessey, in Dallas Friday, said that he expected to make several radio speeches and that he would enlist the support of newspapers for the amendment. Colonel Hennessey is vice president of the Great American Life Underwriters, Inc., of San Antonio and national director of its government personnel division.

After thirty years' service in the army, Colonel Hennessey retired and made his home in San Antonio. He was named as a candidate for the San Antonio School Board two years ago, but was ruled ineligible to hold office, on account of the fact he was a retired army officer.

Enlisting the aid of State Senator W. A. Williamson and Representative P. L. Anderson of his city, Colonel Hennessey induced the Legislature to submit the constitutional amendment coming up Nov. 8 that will give retired officers and men full suffrage rights.

Ft. Benning Notes

Ft. Benning, Ga.—A demonstration of experimental infantry company organizations was held by the 29th Infantry before Maj. Gen. Campbell King, commandant of The Infantry School, members of the infantry board, and other high-ranking officers of the garrison.

The purpose of the demonstration was to illustrate proposed reorganizations of the regimental headquarters company, battalion headquarters company, the machine gun company, and the rifle company of the infantry regiment, using only the present types and quantities of armament and equipment. A regrouping of automatic weapons, and increased facilities for reconnaissance and rapidity of movement, were among the features shown by the display.

Scoring an average of 97.2 per cent in record firing with automatic pistol. Lt. Hobart A. Murphy was accredited the best pistol shot of the company officers' class in the official records of the firing, which has just been completed. Lt. Robert G. Turner, with an average of 96.6, turned in the second highest score, and Lt. Francis E. Howard, and Marvin W. Peck each made scores of 96.3 per cent.

The efficient services of Lt. Crendall B. Warden and a group of non-commissioned officers of the 1st Tank Regiment, who acted as gunnery instructors for the tank company officers' class of 1932, have been made the subject of a commendation from Maj. Omar N. Bradley, chief of the third section, academic department of The Infantry School.

In addition to Lieutenant Warden, Sergeants Sam L. Cunningham, George B. McKelvey, Tiri M. Blevins and Corporals Olive C. Keplinger, Isaac W. Cawthorn, Edwin L. Ellis, Guy Walls, Joe D. ## 6th Infantry March

Jefferson Barracks, Mo.—The Sixth Infantry under the command of Col. Walter Krueger, completed its combat practice firing on Sept. 25, at the United States Target Range near Arcadia, Mo. Two days later it began a march of 105 miles back to Jefferson Barracks, Mo. This marked the first time since 1921, when the regiment marched to its present station from Camp Jackson, S. C., that the Sixth had made a regimental march with all units present.

For the fourteen days that the command was on the march only the authorized wagon transportation accompanied the column. Rations and forage were transported to the command during the various stages of the march from the rail head at Jefferson Barracks.

An interesting feature of the tactical training was the training afforded the communication units in conjunction with the 35th Division Observation Squadron, Missouri National Guard.

The regiment returned to Jefferson Barracks on October 10, after an early morning march from its bivouac near the Meramec river. The care-taking detachments that had remained on duty at the Post during the absence of the regiment were drawn up in front of their respective barracks, and as the regiment swung by, came to the salute.

The value of the training received during almost two months absence from the Post cannot be overestimated. The regiment was engaged in exercises impossible of execution on the Jefferson Barracks reservation, and the field duty performed was a vital element in the training program for the regiment.

Honor Departing Commander

Troops of the 12th Infantry at Ft. Howard, Md., honored their departing commander, Col. William W. Taylor, Jr., with a formal review Oct. 22 on the post parade ground. Colonel Taylor will leave the regiment Nov. 1 to become executive officer at Ft. George G. Meade.

The review Saturday was the first formal appearance of the garrison in the new uniforms of serge coats and elastic breeches of lighter shade as recently authorized by the War Department. Lt. Col. Charles A. Hunt, recently assigned to the regiment, commanded for the review.

At 9.30 Saturday night, the officers and the ladies of the garrison gave a farewell reception and dance honoring Colonel and Mrs. Taylor.

3-Inch AA Gun Mounts

Four of the 3" A.A. Gun Mounts M2, recently proof fired at the Aberdeen Proving Ground have been assigned to the 62nd C.A.C., Fort Totten, N. Y. This organization will take delivery of this material at the Proving Ground and tow them to their home post. To considerably shorten the time in placing this mount in the firing or traveling positions, and to eliminate the now required manhandling of the spare wheels, a method of carrying the spare wheels on the bogies, and the introduction of a fast continuous motion to the jack screws when unloaded, is proposed. This scheme has been approved and one mount will be equipped for test.

Sixth Corps Area Notes

The 61st Coast Artillery (Anti-Aircraft) returned to its station at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., Oct. 17, after important joint exercises with the air forces at Scott Field. The regiment, commanded by Lt. Col. Joseph A. Green, arrived at Scott Field with 13 officers and 234 men on Sept. 23. The air forces for the exercises were commanded by Lt. Col. J. A. Paegelow. On completion of the practice at Scott Field the regiment and the air forces staged a demonstration in St. Louis that was witnessed by thousands of people. The 61st Coast Artillery made the trip to and from Scott Field in its own trucks.

The searchlight drills, conducted each night except Saturday and Sunday, proved quite an interesting spectacle to the personnel of Scott Field.

On the majority of trials the aircraft were caught by the beams of the searchlights while still several miles short of the objective but at times they were successful in eluding the searching fingers of light and reached Lebanon to "theoretically" destroy that village with bombs. The aircraft operated at varying altitudes and approached the objective from any point on the 15-mile base of the triangle. The regiment, having only a small part of the equipment it would have in wartime, only endeavored to defend this 15-mile sector.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the Sixth Corps Area, made his annual tactical inspection of the First Pursuit Group at Selfridge Field, Mich., Oct. 17, witnessing the maneuvers of the squadron from the gunner's cockpit of a P-16, fast two-seater pursuit plane. Following the inspection General Parker gave a short talk to the officers of the post and had lunch with Maj. George H. Brett, commanding Selfridge Field. General Parker made the return trip to Chicago by air, with Capt. Carl W. Connell, corps area air officer, as pilot. Col. Russell C. Langdon, commanding the 2nd Infantry, and Lt. Col. Francis A. Ruggles, assistant chief of staff, G-3, accompanied General Parker on this inspection.

Change Schedule

The Schedule of lectures and conferences at the Army Industrial College for Monday, Oct. 31 is rescinded, and the following substituted therefor: 10:30 A. M., Lecture, "Forecasting," by Mr. Laurence H. Sloan, Vice-Pres., Standard Statistics Co., Inc.; and 1:30 P. M., Conference on Problem No. 3, "Fundamentals of Business."

Hawaiian Division Notes

Schofield Barracks, T. H.—The Hawaiian Division, under command of Maj. Gen. Albert J. Bowley, will honor Rear Adm. Yates Stirling, Jr., Commandant of the 14th Naval District, Pearl Harbor, by a review of the Hawaiian Division at Schofield Barracks on Navy Day, Oct. 27.

The entire division, the largest and most complete in the United States Army, with Chemical Warfare troops and the 18th Pursuit Group attached, will participate.

Portable bleachers for the accommodation of thousands of spectators will be set up. Sections will be set aside for naval personnel and civilians.

Maj. Gen. John L. De Witt, Quartermaster General, inspected the Quartermaster activities of the post Sept. 30. The 3rd Engineers, under command of Lt. Col. Robert R. Ralston, furnished the guard of honor. Battery F, 13th Field Artillery fired the cannon salute.

Brig. Gen. Robert S. Abernathy, commanding the Hawaiian Separate Coast Artillery Corps, who recently relieved Brig. Gen. Albert J. Bowley, was received by Maj. Gen. Albert J. Bowley, Post Commander, Oct. 7. A guard of honor was furnished by the 21st Infantry. Battery E, 8th Field Artillery fired the cannon salute.

The 1932 season of the Schofield Football League started Oct. 1 with several upsets. The 8th Field Artillery held last year leaders, the 27th Infantry, to a 0-0 tie. The 3rd Engineers of fifth place standing last season nosed out the 11th Field Artillery 2-0. Results of other games: 21st Infantry 19—Staff 0; 35th Infantry 61—Air Corps 0; 19th Infantry 13—13th Field Artillery 7.

Through the efforts of Maj. Maurice L. Miller, post Recreation Officer, basketball teams will soon have a new gymnasium. Local contracts have been awarded for the salvage and transportation of one of the old hangers at Wheeler Field. Assisted by soldier labor, the new gymnasium, designed chiefly for basketball and for quartering boxers preparatory to their appearance in the bowl, will be erected and centrally located in vicinity of the boxing bowl. In addition to the basketball court, separate dressing rooms for each organization and showers for general use will be constructed. No additional equipment is planned at present.

The Four Army Plan

plans. The present Corps Area organization does not provide for the establishment and training of higher tactical echelons to which the War Department can properly delegate responsibility for various important phases of preparatory and emergency activity.

As a consequence of these conditions, the War Department, in emergencies of the past, has invariably been compelled to relinquish to one or more virtually independent field commanders its functions in the control of operations; while the Department itself has been overwhelmed with matters relating to organization, administration, supply and other features of mobilization. This fundamental error has always required improvisation and extemporization in filling the organizational void lying between the War Department and fighting units. It has compelled needless delay in the development of sizeable military formations. It has resulted in an essentially dual control of the Army, from which have sprung inefficiency and lack of coordination, to say nothing of an unpleasant aftermath of recrimination and abuse.

The establishment of the skeletonized Army Group on a satisfactory basis, and the decentralization to each Army Commander of responsibility for local organizational tasks in emergency, will promote practically in peacetime preparation. The existence of an adequate system of command and staff will insure that immediately available strength is equal to existing numerical strength. The Chief of Staff, in war, will be enabled to center his attention upon the vital functions of operating and commanding field forces. Moreover, successful accomplishment of this project will link, in the most effective manner, military activities in the Zone of the Interior to those in the Theatre of Operations.

2. Other important advantages will eventuate from the development of the four Field Army organization. The skeletonized Army Group provides a suitable frame work for the assimilation of the thousands of recruits who will, almost simultaneously with the declaration of war, volunteer for service with the colors. Past experience demonstrates that unless necessary authority for the segregation and disposition of this influx of recruits be reposed in tactical commanders, the inevitable effect is to immobilize existing units and swamp them under a maze of organizational and training detail. But with recruit assignment policies developed by Army Commanders in time of peace so as to conform accurately to local needs, there will be produced a progressive increase, rather than a temporary paralysis, in combat effectiveness. The four Field Army organization thus constitutes a logical and definite basis for initial expansion.

Existing plans have not made provision for a decentralization to field commanders of authority and responsibility comparable in degree to that contemplated in the Army Group organization. Based upon the experiences of the World War, there have been developed in the War Department basic mobilization plans for personnel and material, and various subsidiary plans relating to specific theatres of operation. All major plans involve the concept of the "nation in arms." They envision the revolutionary processes of converting the entire life of the nation from a peace to a war basis. Under the programs evolved the extreme limit of the nation's military strength could eventually be attained, ultimate mobilization conceivably involving ten or more million men.

These plans are necessarily based upon certain fundamental assumptions, one of the most important being that Congress would promptly enact required authorizing legislation. The keystone of the legal arch necessary to support such a mobilization is a selective service law. While all plans provide for intensive recruiting campaigns pending the passage of such laws, it is obvious that these far-reaching programs relegate to a secondary position the important question of immediate combat effectiveness.

The most probable conflicts in which the United States might become involved would not require the mobilization of a preponderant portion of our resources. Any World War would in all likelihood be a gradual growth, and in its initial stages would probably, as would most lesser cases, place a premium upon promptitude and expedition.

Under general economic conditions such as those now prevailing it is certain that applications for enlistment would be received promptly and in greater number, and in many situations would satisfy completely the manpower requirements of the Army. It seems reasonable to anticipate that, with effective peace-time preparation, each of the four Field Armies should be able, in emergency, to engage its advanced echelons in active operations almost immediately, and to reach a satisfactory war footing as regards personnel and organization within six to eight weeks. Moreover, and of great importance, such a mobilization could proceed with a minimum of detailed legislative authorizations, scarcely anything being required beyond a general Congressional directive to the President.

3. The organizational, training and preparatory tasks inherent in a project such as herein contemplated devolve mainly upon the several Army Commanders. The whole success of the plan depends in the final analysis upon their vision, energy and resourcefulness. They will necessarily depend upon the means now available within their respective commands. On the other hand, the greatest latitude and initiative possible will be accorded, and interference by the War Department will be held to the practical minimum.

Moreover, after the four Field Armies have been organized, and by yearly exercises have become an accustomed feature of American military life, the General Mobilization Plans and all subsidiary war plans will be modified so as to bring them into complete accord with the conception of decentralized authority and unified control upon which this project is based.

The scope of the plans whose development is to be immediately initiated and eventually completed within the several Army Commands will be inclusive of every function that can be foreseen as necessary. In each case they will be formulated in such detail as appears practicable and desirable. In this way the whole program will conform to the requirements of the local situation. Since mobilization, concentration and supply plans are to be prepared under the supervision of responsible tactical commanders they will be based not only upon considerations of administrative convenience, but upon those of tactical efficiency as well.

In making tentative assignments to duty in the Army organization there are available to the Army Commander all officers and enlisted men within the Army Area who are not exempted from the control of the Corps Area Commanders. This applies to the Regular establishment, and, subject to the limitations imposed by law, to other components of the Army of the United States. In the case of Regular officers, Army assignments will normally carry a much higher command than the rank now held. The necessity for this is obvious, and no limitations are placed upon Army Commanders with respect to it, subject to the observation that in any particular unit no Regular officer should, in time of peace, be assigned to a position placing him directly in charge of his seniors in the Regular service. Necessarily, of course, in the normal case, duties assigned to Regular officers will be in addition to those now performed.

Preliminary material plans for mobilization should be based upon foreseen requirements, both as regards amounts and locations. Alterations dictated by availability of supplies will undoubtedly be necessary after tentative plans have been reviewed in the War Department. So far as practicable, however, the Department will shape its policies concerning supply methods and war reserves so as to conform to the considered recommendations of the several Army Commanders.

4. The preceding discussion constitutes practically all that is necessary as a preliminary directive. This, taken in conjunction with my letter on the same subject, dated August 9, 1932, should, I feel, enable each Army Commander to proceed immediately with his tentative organizational, training, supply and concentration plans.

In early December Army Commanders will be convened in this city for conference. It is expected that each will then be in position to present his preliminary assignment lists and the salient features of his organizational and training plans. These will form a general basis for discussion and will probably indicate the channels along which War Department effort should be directed so as to contribute effectively to eventual success. Plans evolved on such short notice will be tentative in outline and incomplete as to detail. But through early discussion of the problems and difficulties developed in the initial stages of organization, it is believed that eventual progress will be facilitated. My earnest hope is that by the summer of 1933 this project will be sufficiently advanced to permit the holding of preliminary command post exercises and problems down to and including regimental headquarters.

Douglas MacArthur,
General,
Chief of Staff.

Ft. Sill Notes

Ft. Sill, Okla.—Battery D of the First Field Artillery commanded by Capt. H. J. Gaffey, has just won, in competition with the other artillery units here, the honor of representing the Field Artillery School in the Army-wide competition for the Knox Trophy. ## Dedication of Wright Monument

The War Department has fixed Nov. 19, 1932, as the date for the dedication of the Wright monument at Kill Devil Hill, near Kitty Hawk, North Carolina.

This monument which has just been completed was erected under authority of a special Act of Congress to commemorate "The first successful human attempt in all history at power-driven flight achieved by Orville Wright Dec. 17, 1903." The memorial is a beautiful triangular granite shaft sixty feet in height to be surmounted by a powerful airways beacon.

Philadelphia Hospital Progresses

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahneke has announced that the drawings and specifications for the new Naval Hospital, in Philadelphia, would be completed and issued to prospective bidders on November 7. Bids for the construction of the hospital will be opened in the Navy Department, Washington, D. C., on December 5.

The architects for the group of buildings which will comprise the new hospital are Walter T. Karchner and Livingston Smith of Philadelphia. They have been cooperating with the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Navy Department, for the past fifteen months in preparing specifications and drawings.

The site of the hospital will embrace twenty-two acres, facing the present League Island Park in South Philadelphia. It is bounded by Pattison Avenue, 16th Street, 19th Street and Hartranft Street. The architectural group will be composed of the main Hospital Building, with a capacity of six hundred sixty (660) beds, including wards and single rooms, quarters for fifty nurses, quarters for two hundred hospital corpsmen, a large garage, four quarters for officers, a greenhouse and a film storage building. The buildings will contain approximately three hundred bath, utility, and washrooms, and the latest developments in heating and ventilation will be incorporated in the project.

The main building will be one of the largest hospital structures in that section of the country, and its dimensions will be: from east to west, 415 feet; from north to south, 328 feet; and its central portion will have a height of 200 feet. The roof area of this building will be devoted to six sun terraces, five of them to be approximately twenty-five by one hundred feet and the sixth to be twelve by one hundred and twenty-six feet. The solarium, which will be a distinctive feature of the building, will face the south. These will be constructed almost entirely of aluminum as will the prominent main entrance feature, three stories in height, in the central portion.

Four stories of the main building will be constructed of Tennessee marble. Granite and limestone will be used for steps and copings. All buildings are to be completely screened with copper and electrically operated lightproof shades are to be installed in the operating rooms and in the auditorium.

Another feature of the hospital will be the amount and character of space devoted to occupational therapy. The entire seventh floor of the main building will be devoted to this work where convalescent blue-jackets and ex-service veterans will be taught useful trades.

In order to eliminate noise in the buildings, extensive use will be made of acoustical sound deadening material.

A variety of flooring will be used throughout the new group of buildings; terrazzo and asphalt tile floors of various colors will cover corridors, wards and special rooms while vitreous tile will cover walls and other floors. Wood will be used for flooring in the officers' quarters. Metal door trim with terrazzo and rubber tile base will be used in the main building and hospital corpsmen's quarters, while wood trim will be used in the nurses' quarters.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahneke stated, "When construction of this new hospital group gets well under way it is safe to say that thousands of workmen, directly and indirectly, will reap the benefit of employment in Philadelphia for a period of certainly over a year and a half."

Recollections of Roosevelt

(The following interesting narrative about the late President Theodore Roosevelt was dictated last week by an eyewitness, now Rear Adm. W. W. Phelps, USN.)

In 1905, President Roosevelt brought about the Portsmouth Peace Conference to settle the war between Japan and Russia.

Lt. Comdr. W. W. Phelps was the Executive Officer of the U. S. Yacht Mayflower, commanded by Comdr. Cameron McRae Winslow.

On the day the peace delegates from Russia were to meet the peace delegates from Japan, the Mayflower and Dolphin were lying in Oyster Bay. The Mayflower was dedicated as Headquarters' Ship for the Russia Peace Embassy, and the Dolphin was dedicated as Headquarters' Ship for the Japanese Peace Embassy.

The President had arranged to have two cruisers of identical sister-ship design to bring the Peace Embassies to him at Oyster Bay. One cruiser was to leave the East River side of Manhattan, and the other cruiser was to leave the North River side of Manhattan.

Early in the forenoon, President Roosevelt came aboard the Mayflower at Oyster Bay and took charge. He gave directions that the cruiser with the Japanese was to be the first to enter Oyster Bay, closely followed by the cruiser carrying the Russians. Then he directed that the Russians were not to leave their cruiser till the President signalled for them to come, and he signalled for the other cruiser to send the Japanese Embassy over to the Mayflower to him.

On the arrival of the Japanese Peace Ambassador, President Roosevelt took him into a little library off the main dining room of the Mayflower, shut the door, and remained alone with him for fifteen minutes or so, and no outsider ever knew what took place between those two.

Then the President emerged from the little library, shutting the door behind him and shutting the Japanese Peace Ambassador inside, and he signalled to have the Russians come aboard.

There was no other little private room, so that the President sat the Russian Peace Ambassador down in one corner of the big dining room. The President took a chair and sat before him and pinned him in the corner, while the Military Aide to the President paced back and forth in the rear of the President, preventing anybody from coming near enough to hear what the President was saying to the Russian Peace Ambassador, but all of us in the big dining room had no trouble in seeing that the President was very earnest and was laying down the law to the Russian Peace Ambassador.

Finally, President Roosevelt, having finished his lecture to the Russian Peace Ambassador, led the Russian by the hand over to the door of the little room where the Japanese was closed in, and, not letting go of the hand of the Russian, President Roosevelt reached in and took the hand of the Japanese Peace Ambassador with his other hand and brought these two hands together in such a kindly and gentle way that the two men shook each other's hands cordially, and thereafter the big staff of the Japanese Peace Embassy mingled with cordiality with the big staff of the Russian Peace Embassy. All hands fell to at lunch in the best of good feeling. The President raised his glass of champagne and all the others drank to the success of the Peace Conference.

It is probably true to say that the ultimate success of the Peace Conference was due to the sympathetic way President Roosevelt brought the two Embassies together.

After the luncheon, the President left and went ashore. The Japanese bid the Russians a cordial au revoir and crossed over to the Dolphin. Both ships got under way for Portsmouth, New Hampshire.

Nicaraguan Bandit Contact

Lt. Col. Calvin B. Matthews, U. S. Marine Corps, commanding the National Guard Nicaraguan detachment, reported to the Navy Department Oct. 27 that Lt. Gus G. Reid (Corporal, USMC), Lt. James F. Atwell (Corporal, USMC), and Lt. William Frisch (Corporal USMC), with guardia patrols of about 50 men, engaged a large bandit group at Cerro Colorado in the Western part of the Province of Estel near the Honduras border on Oct. 24. Ft. Sill, Okla.—By virtue of its 19-0 victory Sunday, Oct. 23, over the 18th Field Artillery, the 1st Battalion 38th Infantry, present post football champions at the Field Artillery School, seems practically assured of continuing its dominance in the gridiron art since it has but one game remaining and that is with the weakest aggregation here.

San Antonio—Lt. Dolf Muehleisen, leading Army tennis ace, recently won the annual Southwest Texas Singles Championship from a field of over 100 entries at the San Antonio Country Club. Lieutenants John Helms and Muehleisen reached the semi-final round in doubles, losing to the winners of the tournament, Taylor and Connelley, in a hot match to the tune of 11-9, 6-4, 6-3.

ARMY FOOTBALL

West Point, N. Y.—Bargain prices will prevail at Michie Stadium Saturday, Oct. 29, when William and Mary, who defeated Navy, will meet the Army team. Major Fleming stated that all tickets would be $1.10 and that approximately 5500 sideline seats are available for sale to the general public.

The "Indians," in addition to their victory over Navy, have made an excellent record. Their only defeat was by the strong Virginia Polytechnic eleven, who have a clean record for the season. V. P. I. also beat the Georgia team. Saturday's game will give football fans an opportunity to judge the strength of the two Service teams.

Although the Army team has just passed through two hard games, Major Sasse stated that there would be no let down in practice for the Cadet squad. He plans to give the reserves special attention this week in effort to increase their efficiency.

Last Saturday's game at New Haven saw Army crush Yale 20-0, with stellar played by Pick Vidal and Jack Buckler. Without a victory over Yale in three years the Army team was primed to win and they did it in no uncertain fashion.

Yale gained only thirty-four yards by rushing all afternoon, averaging less than a yard on thirty-six running plays. They tried seventeen passes and only three were completed, four others being intercepted by the Cadets. By both methods they made only four first downs.

Against this the Army gained 159 yards by rushing, completed four out of fifteen passes and rolled up seven first downs. Only in the kicking department could Yale show any superiority, the Blue booters averaging thirty-six yards from the line of scrimmage against thirty for the Cadets, but the Army average was brought down by the fact that many times Fields and Buckler made intentionally short punts to put the ball out of bounds inside the 10-yard mark.

NAVY FOOTBALL

Annapolis, Md.—Last Saturday Army in the Yale bowl and Navy at Princeton were rivals in drawing the largest crowds in the East—each game reporting an attendance of 45,000 spectators. Harvard was next with 40,000 while Colgate against N. Y. U. entertained 35,000 spectators in Yankee Stadium.

Navy is in receipt of word from Cleveland that the Notre Dame-Navy clash dated for Nov. 19, already shows indications of being a sell-out to a seventy-eight thousand capacity.

"Navy came out of a hard game at Princeton Saturday," a statement at the office of the Graduate Manager of Athletics says, "still undefeated by the lean Tiger in seven encounters since 1924. The midshipmen next face Penn at Philadelphia. To date the Quakers are little better off than Princeton in their present day record against Navy. Penn having won only 3 games in a series of 8 played since 1914.

"While Annapolis battered away at a stout-hearted Princeton defense with what the Associated Press described as 'a scrappy Navy eleven,' Penn reached print chiefly for 'playing a comedy of errors' against its old friend Lehigh. Penn scored on the Engineers in lazy fashion whereas Navy was unable to reach the Tiger's goal during a heavy barrage that kept up for a full hour. Navy's determination to down Princeton is well illustrated by the fact that line-men Murray, Brooks, Reedy, Burns and Kane were kept in the game for sixty minutes while Harbo'd stayed in at center for 59 minutes. Princeton made only 12 yards over Harbo'd all afternoon and lost several valuable first downs before they discovered how Navy's center earned the name of 'Butch.' Cutting down backs on the hoof is Harbo'd's Big Cassino in football. Along with this, being a center himself, he likes to muscle his way to an opponent's fumble. Saturday he caused Princeton to juggle the ball a number of times and during the game plowed into groups of orange striped Princetonians gathering in two live fumbles on the first bounce.

Navy Day Celebrated

Amid all of the hub-bub of the pre-election campaign and controversy over internal economic conditions Navy Day this year received more attention than perhaps ever before.

Both of the candidates for the presidency issued Navy Day statements, President Hoover taking occasion to issue a warning to the world to curtail armaments or the United States will build up to existing treaty limits.

All over the country, especially where the Navy was represented by vessels or shore stations, ceremonies were held. Thousands upon thousands of visitors boarded naval vessels and entered navy yards to acquaint themselves with their "first line of defense."

Secretary of the Navy Adams was the principal speaker over a coast to coast radio network. His theme was the "Naval Genius of George Washington." Concluding his address, the Secretary said:

"Let us not forget this great man's saying:

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace."

"And President Theodore Roosevelt's: 'The prime and all-important lesson to learn is that while preparedness will not guarantee a nation against war, unpreparedness eventually insures not merely war, but utter disaster.'"

In Washington the day was fittingly observed.

At the Washington Navy Yard "open house" was held and one of the finest exhibits ever assembled for Navy Day visitors was shown. It was arranged under the direction of Capt. Frank D. Berrien, USN, captain of the yard, and chairman of the yard's Navy Day committee. The U. S. Frigate Constitution was open to visitors throughout the day.

The Naval Observatory was open to the public on Navy Day, Oct. 27. The head of all Departments and their assistants were on duty during office hours to show the visitors through their divisions.

A special feature of Navy Day was the broadcasting by Naval Communications of messages from the Secretary of the Navy to the radio amateurs of the United States and of a message from Adm. William V. Pratt, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, to the American Merchant Marine.

To the twenty-five amateurs submitting the best copies of the broadcast, the Secretary of the Navy will send formal letters of appreciation.

The message from Admiral Pratt broadcast to the American Merchant Marine contained a message of appreciation of the cooperation given the United States Navy during the past year.

Navy Day greetings were extended from the Army as follows:

"Honorable Charles Francis Adams, 'Secretary of the Navy,'

"Dear Mr. Secretary:

"On behalf of the War Department I am delighted on this Navy Day to extend to our gallant comrades of the sea the wholesome respect, genuine admiration and warm affection of their brothers in the service of our Country.

"Sincerely yours,

"PATRICK J. HURLEY, 'Secretary of War.'"

"Admiral William V. Pratt, 'Chief of Naval Operations, Navy Department,'

"My dear Admiral Pratt:

"On behalf of the Army I am most happy to transmit to you on Navy Day the expression of our confidence, esteem and affection. We rejoice that the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt is appropriately associated with the Navy which so worthily embodies his philosophy of patriotism, self-respect and national security.

"With all good wishes of the day, I remain

"Cordially and sincerely yours,

"DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, 'General, 'Chief of Staff.'"

"Major General Commandant Ben H. Fuller, USMC, 'Navy Department,'

"My dear General Fuller:

"Please accept best wishes for Navy Day on behalf of myself and of the Army of the United States. Our feeling for the naval service is necessarily one of fellowship, admiration and affection. In large measure it has found its inspiration among the gallant Marines who have marched with us and mingled their blood with ours across the earth's span. Be sure that on Navy Day and on every other day we, as Americans, take justifiable pride in the splendid abilities and record of your Corps.

"Cordially and sincerely yours,

"DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, 'General, 'Chief of Staff.'"

"Established in obedience to an insistent demand for an official organ for members of the American Defense and those concerned with it, The Army and Navy Journal will be published in the interest of no party; it will be controlled by no clique. Its independence will be absolute. Its interests will be directed solely to the inculcation of sound military ideas and to the elevation of the public service in all its departments.—From Vol. I, No. 1, of The Army and Navy Journal, published August 29, 1893.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1932

"We are a very rich country, vast in extent of territory and great in population; a country, moreover, which has an Army diminutive indeed when compared with that of any other first-class power. We have deliberately made our own certain foreign policies which demand the possession of a first-class Navy."—THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

PRESIDENT HOOVER NEVER SAID a truer word than that the National Defense is the first and most solemn obligation placed upon the Federal Government by the Constitution. In calling the attention of the Nation to this heavy responsibility, he expressed a principle which, in spite of the insistent public pressure for economy and the disarmament negotiations, has underlain the policy of his administration. He has recognized that the man power of the Army must be maintained, and he stood ready to veto the Army appropriation bill had the efforts of the Garner-Collins clique to reduce the commissioned personnel been successful. He has always insisted, in line with the best Navy thought, that the size of the Fleet must be determined by the construction of other Nations; and, therefore, he pressed with earnest purpose the plan, not for disarmament, but for the reduction of armaments. Always in the back of his mind, as readers of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL know, was his determination, should the Geneva negotiations fail, to insist that the Navy be built to the full strength established by the London treaty. That determination is now publicly expressed in his Navy Day statement. The effect the pronouncement will have upon the negotiations is problematical. But it will be welcome to all men and women who are concerned about American security and the protection of American Commerce, and it will cause even avowed pacifists to realize that honest efforts at disarmament having failed, the solemn obligation of the Constitution forces the development of the Navy to a point where it will be "equal to that of the most powerful in the world."

LET US SEE WHAT are the chances for the success of the disarmament negotiations, the failure of which would entail vast expenditures in construction and for personnel, and deal a blow to one of the most cherished aspirations of the American people. We quote, the President's language. Maximize it as they did, and as Secretary of State Stimson attempted in his Pittsburgh speech on Wednesday night, still the Geneva Conference recessed last summer with negligible accomplishments. Mr. Stimson correctly said in the address referred to, that "inasmuch as we had already limited our Navy, and as our Army was not a menace or a cause of anxiety to anyone, the chief problems of the Conference, and the responsibility for their solution, necessarily rested upon the shoulders of the other Nations." What have those Nations done? Confronted by the Hoover proposal for a one-third cut, each of the great powers has devised plans of its own, and these plans make for only one purpose—national security, increase in relative strength and realization of the goals set by manifest destiny. Thus Great Britain is opposed to submarines and cruisers with a large radius of operation. France and Japan contend for submarines and for the type of craft that will protect their respective interests. Japan urges the abolition of aircraft carriers and ships that can cross the Pacific. Germany wants the right to arm equally with France, a right the French will never grant. In short, the competition of national policies, the conflict of vital interests, and, above all, the public demand for protection, caused in part by international suspicion, create a condition which makes impossible the realization of the ideal of disarmament, which was an outgrowth of the World War. Therefore, it is not difficult to foresee that no results of any magnitude will flow from the present negotiations; and if President Hoover should be reelected we may expect that in his first annual message in his second term he will recommend a program that will assure the Fleet permitted by the London Treaty.

ALL HONOR TO BRIG GEN. ROBERT J. TRAVIS, president of the National Guard Association of the United States! He reports that during the last session he was told that if the National Guard would not oppose the reduction of the Regular Army by 4,000 officers, a substantial increase in the amount allowed in the budget for the organization, would be granted. "We were unwilling to accept this proposition," he says with obvious reserve. We will be less considerate in our description of this bald-faced effort to purchase political support for a proposal designed to weaken the strength of the Nation and summarily to retire 4,000 officers. There was no question of efficiency involved, in spite of the statements to the contrary made on the floor of the House of Representatives by Mr. Collins, chairman of the Army sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee. Supported, if not inspired by Speaker Garner, Mr. Collins sought by any means, to gain his objective. It was nothing to him that the careers of 4,000 mentally and physically competent men were to be cut short, that they and their families were to be given a retired pay inadequate for their needs. What he sought was the reduction of the Army along the lines agreed upon by himself, Speaker Garner and Representative Byrns, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee. To those who voted as the House leaders directed or suggested, a feeling of shame will come when they realize what sordid means were employed to achieve the Collins objective. The Nation now knows from an official source of this malodorous incident, and it should demand the man who so approached General Travis be expelled from the House. General Travis and the Association merely observed the high traditions of the National Guard in their decisive rejection of the proposal and probably expect no commendation therefor. But we cannot refrain from expressing gratification at the unity which as their action shows exists between this important branch of the Army of the United States and the regular establishment. A congressional investigation of all the facts would be illuminating, and as nothing along this line can be expected from the Garner-Collins controlled House, we suggest the inquiry be made by the Senate Committee on Military Affairs.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Leavenworth Policy.—General Staff studies looking toward a possible revision of the policy regarding the selection of students for the Command and General Staff School, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., have been completed and are now before Gen. Douglas MacArthur for final decision.

It is expected that decision will be made and an announcement issued probably next week as to the policy to be pursued and the allotment of students to be allowed each of the branches.

It is known that considerable thought has been given toward the institution of a system of competitive examinations. Whether or not it will be done remains to be decided but it is generally thought that it will not. It is likely, however, that another step will be taken to lower the average age of students entering the school.

Army Ration.—Considerable progress has been made in the War Department toward the formulation of a new ration which will liberalize the present one and permit a more varied diet than is now possible under the falling prices of the specified components. When final decision has been made it will be sent to the White House with a recommendation that the President issue an executive order on the subject, just as President Coolidge did in establishing the present ration.

The New Drill.—Reports from the field on the results of the new Infantry Drill, formulated at the Infantry School, are due at the War Department in six months. At that time these reports will be subjected to study to determine the value of the new drill.

In October, 300 copies of the new drill were sent to each Corps Area and Department, 375 to the Panama Canal Department, Regular Army; and 15,300 to the Militia Bureau for distribution to State Adjutants General, National Guard.

Maj. Gen. Stephen O. Fuqua, chief of Infantry, speaking of the new drill at Ft. Benning this week said:

"This drill is certain to facilitate C.M.T.C., R.O.T.C., O.R.C. and Regular Army training and best of all, will greatly reduce the load on the new officer and the drafted man in time of General Mobilization. This is a product of our Infantry School of which we are very proud. I might say that the Chief of Staff is enthusiastic about this new drill."

Air Corps Officers Take Up Squash.—As a means of improving their eyesight and keeping in physical trim during the winter months, the Air Corps has taken up the game of squash in a large way. Recommended by flight surgeons as one of the best methods of attaining a "20-20," the sport has taken hold at Air Corps posts and bids fair to become the most popular wintertime activity.

Much of the popularity of the game is due to the personal enthusiasm of Maj. Gen. Benjamin Foulous, Chief of Air Corps. An accomplished and regular player of the game, General Foulous has found that his eyesight, an important consideration to every flyer, has improved with each annual physical examination since he began playing the game.

With Army doctors confirming his opinion as to the reason for his optical improvement, the General decided that he would prescribe squash for the Air Corps. On all of his regular visits to aviation fields, he has talked of the game, and as a result it is flourishing. At Mitchel Field, a team has been formed which meets the best competition in New York City, the university alumni clubs, and last year met a team representing Langley Field.

Officers on duty at the War Department are handicapped in not having a court, unless they are members of the Racquet Club, or wish to drive over to Bolling Field.

Marine Generals Reassigned.—Five general officers of the Marine Corps will take up new duties in a shift of assignments effective next January. Maj. Gen. Logan Feland, now in command of the Department of the Pacific, will come to the Navy Department for duty until his retirement the end of next August. His place will be taken by Maj. Gen. John T. Myers. Brig. Gen. John H. Russell will relieve General Myers as assistant to the major general commandant, while Brig. Gen. Harry Lee will take over General Russell's duties in command of the marine base, Quantico, Va. General Lee, now in command at Parris Island, will be relieved by Brig. Gen. Randolph C. Berkeley. General Berkeley's present command, the Second Brigade of Marines in Nicaragua, will cease to exist early next winter when the last of the Marines are withdrawn from that country.

Army Promotions.—Ten officers of the Army were promoted to higher grades on the active list in orders issued by the War Department this week. They are:
Lt. Col. Ralph M. Parker, Cav. (det. in GSC), to be a colonel from Oct. 24, 1932.
Lt. Col. Harry A. Wells, Inf., to be a colonel from Oct. 19, 1932.
Maj. Arthur H. MacKie, Inf., to be a lieutenant colonel from Oct. 19, 1932.
Maj. Samuel R. Dishman, QMC, to be a lieutenant colonel from Oct. 24, 1932.
Capt. Albert C. Standford, FA, to be a major from Oct. 24, 1932.
Capt. Joel G. Holmes, ED, to be a major from Oct. 19, 1932.
1st Lt. Emil F. Kollmer, FA, to be a captain from Oct. 24, 1932.
1st Lt. Jean Edens, Inf., to be a captain from Oct. 19, 1932.
2nd Lt. Jay B. Loveless, Inf., to be a first lieutenant from Oct. 24, 1932.
2nd Lt. Layten A. Zimmer, CAC, to be a first lieutenant from Oct. 19, 1932.

Army Retirements.—Fifteen officers of the Army whose examination by Army Retiring Boards resulted in decisions that they were incapacitated for active service on account of disability incident thereto, were ordered retired in Special Orders issued this week. All of the retirements become effective Oct. 31, 1932. They are:

Col. Frank T. McNarney, Cav; Col. George B. Rodney, Cav; Lt. Col. Morgan L. Brett, OD (retired with rank of colonel under the War Time Rank Act); Maj. Frank D. Francis, MC; Capt. Robert F. Blodgett, FA; Capt. Trevor W. Swett, Inf; Capt. Charles S. Sly, MAC; Capt. Everett R. Stevens, QM; Capt. Abraham B. Thumel, QMC; Capt. Philip A. Scholl, FD (retired with rank of lieutenant colonel under the War Time Rank Act); Capt. Peter Hanses, QMC (retired with rank of major under the War Time Rank Act); Capt. Archibald L. Barber, QMC; 1st Lt. George W. M. Dudley, Inf; 1st Lt. Ora E. Fately, QMC; and 2nd Lt. Harry A. Winters, AC.

In addition to these retirements Chaplain Samuel O. Wright, USA, having been found physically disqualified for the duties of a chaplain with the rank of major, his retirement from active service as a major was ordered. Chaplain Wright will rank as major from Oct. 20, 1932, the date upon which he would have been promoted to that grade by reason of length of commissioned service had he been found qualified.

Capt. Joseph C. Dolan, FA, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., was ordered to proceed to his home on or about Oct. 31, 1932, and await retirement.

Three officers were ordered before Army Retiring Boards for examination. They are: Brig. Gen. Robert M. McCleave, USA, Letterman General Hospital, to report to board at Ninth Corps Area headquarters; Col. Edmund C. Abbott, JAGD, to report to board at Washington, D. C.; and Capt. Ary C. Berry, FA, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., to report to board at Eighth Corps Area headquarters.

Officers to Be Bonded.—Pending the printing of changes in AR 35-220 (Finance Department—Bonds of Accountable Officers) the War Department has announced that paragraph 1, of those regulations is changed as follows (new language in italics):

1. Officers required to be bonded.—a. Accountability for funds.

(1) All officers of the Finance Department and Quartermaster Corps, including officers detailed therein from other arms, services, or bureaus, who are intrusted with the duty of disbursing public moneys, will before entering upon such duty give good and sufficient bond to the United States in such sum as the Secretary of War may direct.

(2) Officers within the class described in (1) above are required to give bond whether they act as accountable disbursing officers or as agents to the accountable disbursing officer, Op. J.A.G., April 10, 1922.

b. Accountability for property.—All officers of the Quartermaster Corps, including officers detailed therein from other arms, services, or bureaus, shall before entering upon duty in which they are accountable for public property give good and sufficient bond to the United States in such sum as the Secretary of War may direct.

Developments in the Infantry.—Infantrymen everywhere will be intensely interested in the news of progress of developments in their arm as related to the Infantry School this week by Maj. Gen. Stephen O. Fuqua, Chief of Infantry. In his address the General made frequent reference to the various projects for the improvement of the arm, excerpts from which follow:

There has been great activity in this promising field and much has been done to improve the range and quality of voice radio. Radio voice messages between tanks, and other moving vehicles and also between ground units and airplanes are now assured under favorable conditions.

It is very sensitive to intervening terrain which prohibits communication. We expect to get 3 or 4 sets with recent improvement to the Board during the fiscal year.

Another new development in voice radio is the so-called Midget set (SCR 183-T-4), which weighs only 30 lbs. This set uses batteries—is still in the experimental stage. It can be changed from sending to receiving by turning a switch.

The T1 series tank is being remodeled by the Ordnance Department with the engine placed in rear instead of in front of the driver. The new model is called the T1E6. It will be sent to Fort Benning after preliminary tests at Aberdeen.

The new regulations will greatly simplify training in Infantry anti-aircraft firing and reduce the amount of equipment required. The Infantry must maintain itself reliable in combat with low flying airplanes. From all information available from abroad we are far in the lead in this development.

Captain Loustaunau in the French periodical La Revue d'Infanterie, July 1, 1931, states: "There is no doubt that since the war, it is the American Infantry that has advanced most in this respect because frequent maneuvers etc., etc., etc., have infused in it the will to conquer."

A very interesting development in the machine gun field is the one of dowe metal (an alloy of magnesium, which is lighter than aluminum). A reduced size machine gun similar to the caliber .30 Browning, but air-cooled, is being made for test from this light metal. I saw this during the day I spent at Aberdeen earlier in the month. Those demonstrating the weapon were most enthusiastic and it looks as if something of marked importance has accrued in this field. It will of course come here to our Infantry Board for test and experimentation in due time.

The tests of the .276 caliber semi-automatic rifle (Garand type), have been completed. Reports are favorable. However, the War Department desires a test of a .30 caliber semi-automatic rifle of the same type. The fabrication test has been made.

Eighty of these rifles are being made. It is hoped to get these rifles to our Board by next May. A belt-fed Browning automatic rifle is also being produced.

Play for President's Cup

tion of the Commander-in-Chief, United States Fleet Admiral Richard H. Leigh and the Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, Secretary Adams wrote to the Secretary of War making the suggestion. Maj. Gen. George V. H. Moseley, USA, as Acting Secretary of War, answered the communication, informing the Navy Department that the question of athletics in the Ninth Corps Area was purely a local matter, and the War Department did not desire to exercise any influence over the Corps Area Commander, but that it would interpose no objection, "providing it is made plain to the public and the press that the team is a Corps Area team and not an all-Army team."

The correspondence between the Departments and the White House in the matter appears below. Secretary Adams' letters to Secretary Hurley follows:

"My dear Secretary:

"I understand that the 'President's Cup' Service Football Trophy, which has been contested for annually since 1924 on the East Coast of the United States, has been returned to the President by its last year's winner, the U. S. Coast Guard, for the reason of lack of competition in that none of the Service is able to enter a team to play for the cup on the East Coast.

"I am informed by the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Fleet, and by the Major General Commandant, U. S. Marine Corps, that on the West Coast there exists a keen spirit of rivalry between service football teams representing the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps. These teams, representing the Battle Force of the Navy, the Ninth Area of the Army, and the Marine Barracks, San Diego, already are scheduled to play each other during the coming season.

"As these teams may be considered as representing their respective services on the West Coast, and as there is no inter-service competition scheduled for the East Coast, it appears appropriate that the 'President's Cup' should be made available for competition and award to the winner of the West Coast series. Such a recommendation has been made by the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Fleet and the Major General Commandant, U. S. Marine Corps.

"If you concur with me in this proposal, I suggest that a letter be addressed to the President requesting that the Cup be forwarded to such representative on the West Coast as he may designate and that it be made available for competition and award under such rules as may be mutually agreed upon.

"I am informed by the Commandant U. S. Coast Guard, that the Coast Guard will be unable to enter a team this year, but that there is no objection on the part of that service to making the 'President's Cup' available for competition on the West Coast."

General Moseley, as Acting Secretary of War replied as follows:

"My dear Secretary:

"I have your letter of the 17th instant in which you suggest the transfer of the President's Cup inter-service football trophy to the West Coast to be played for by the service teams in their annual football event this Autumn. Having looked into the history of the case, I find that the War Department withdrew from the contest in 1927 and therefore should not have any voice in determining in what manner the trophy might be utilized.

"I find that for seven years prior to 1928 the Army had assembled enlisted men and organized them into a team primarily to represent the Army in the President's Cup match. The formation of an Army team was found difficult of accomplishment due to the expense, lack of funds, and the dispersion of the Regular Army in small garrisons throughout the United States and in our foreign possessions. It also caused a lowering of interest in local athletics as the keymen were withdrawn from unit and post competitions.

"Since 1928, the control of service athletics has been decentralized to Corps Area Commanders. Under this authority, The Commanding General, Ninth Corps Area has formed a Corps Area football team. Because the games played by this team are of purely local concern, the War Department does not desire to exercise any influence over the Corps Area Commander by offering or concurring in suggestions concerning his team.

"However, as the Ninth Corps Area team is scheduled to play teams representing the Battle Force of the Navy and the Marine Barracks, San Diego, the War Department will interpose no objection in the event the Commanding General Ninth Corps Area desires to enter his team in the President's Cup match. If held on the West Coast, providing it is made plain to the public and the press that the team is a Corps Area team and not an all-Army team.

"It is with deep regret, therefore, that I am unable to concur in your proposal."

Secretary Adams on Oct. 21, addressed the following letter to the President:

"It is understood that the 'President's Cup' Service Football Trophy, which has been contested for annually since 1924 on the East Coast of the United States, has been returned to the President by its last year's winner, the United States Coast Guard, for the reason of lack of competition in that none of the Services is able to enter a team to play for the cup on the East Coast.

"In view of the fact that service football teams representing units or subdivisions of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps on the West Coast generally play an interservice series, it is suggested that the 'President's Cup' be made available for award to such service football teams as may desire to compete for this trophy on the West Coast."

Mr. Lawrence Richey, Secretary to the President, this week notified the heads of the Departments affected, that the suggestion of Secretary Adams, "met with the approval of the President."

This Week—

Assistant Secretary of War Payne has no doubt in his mind as to what will be attempted during the coming session. In addressing the convention of the National Guard Association of the United States, he warned that the forces that sought to hamstring the Army last winter and spring would renew their efforts to nullify the military defense system established by the National Defense Act. The National Guard, in order to carry out its program, will have to fight for a deficiency appropriation denied it by the Bureau of the Budget. The danger is that not only this component, but the Reserves and, especially the Regular Establishment, will be subjected to the axe. If the democratic plan to postpone passage of all appropriation bills until an extra session of Congress called by Mr. Roosevelt should be adopted, then, indeed, would National Defense have cause to tremble.

But, do you know, I have an abiding faith in the judgment of the American people. I listened to President Hoover's Detroit speech, and my heart throbbed with satisfaction at the spontaneous outburst of approval given to his statement that "In the present disturbed state of the world we must not further reduce our defenses without a general agreement of reduction of arms." Remember that Detroit has been subjected for years to the pacifistic utterances of such a great and powerful organ as the Detroit News. Politicians generally should take note of this significant incident.

When you get travel orders use the O. & O. It wants the business of the Services and frankly asks for it. Besides, as one who knows, I can testify as to the comfort of its equipment and the courtesy of its employees. Try it and be satisfied.

The mayor of New York has appointed Maj. Gen. William N. Haskell commander 27th Division, New York National Guard, as chairman of the Committee of Unemployment relief. The job General Haskell has undertaken is of great social importance, but his long experience in European relief work will stand him in good stead, and assure a service beneficial not only to those in need but to the city and the Nation.

Here's a suggestion that will have a warm American reception. It comes from Sir Norman Angell, British pacifist and contemplates construction for the American Navy of warships in English shipyards at the expense of the London Government. The amount to be spent would be $150,000,000, and credit therefor would be granted against the British governmental debt. It is interesting to find a pacifist who sees some benefit flowing to humanity from warship construction.

Mass. Guard Attendance

Boston.—The percentage of attendance for July, 1932, of 94.5% establishes a record for the Massachusetts National Guard so far as is known. It is interesting to note that 6 complete organizations: 101st Engineers, 26th Div. Train, 26th Div. Aviation, 211th Coast Arty., 110th Cavalry and the 372nd Infantry had every unit with a percentage of 90 or better, with 19 units showing a perfect attendance of 100%.

The Honor List contains the names of 141 units or 83% of the entire Guard. The 26th Div. Aviation heads the list for the third time this year, with the 101st Infantry bringing up the tail for the fourth time with the very fine percentage of 92.0.

Comptroller Allows Claim

Officers of the Marine Corps serving outside the limits of the United States on authorized leave of absence in the United States which began prior to July 1, 1932, and which would have continued subsequent thereto had the Economy Act not terminated the leave on June 30, 1932, should be considered as on legislative furlough without pay, only up to and including the date of their sailing from the United States on the return from leave, the Comptroller General ruled this week.

Presented with the question whether Capt. Miller V. Parsons, USMC, and 2nd Lt. Otho C. Ledbetter, USMC, should be considered as on leave without pay until their arrival at their duty station in Nicaragua, Comptroller McCarl held that they were entitled to pay while enroute from the United States to Nicaragua. The Economy Act cut short the authorized leave of these officers on July 1, 1932 and the question involved was when they ceased being in a leave status. Comptroller General A-45160, Oct. 18, 1932.

MERCHANT MARINE

Pacific Coast Shipping

The importance of Pacific Coast activities in the American Merchant Marine was stressed by S. S. Sandberg, commissioner of the U. S. Shipping Board, in an address Oct. 26, before the Pacific American Shipowners' Association meeting at San Francisco.

"The Pacific Coast," Mr. Sandberg said, "has played a prominent part in the development of the American Merchant Marine. The services operating from this coast were the first of the several regions to be operated privately by citizens of the United States."

"Pacific Coast interests have made a substantial investment in the American Merchant Marine, having purchased from the Shipping Board 212 vessels of nearly two million gross tons. The West Coast interests are prominently identified, also, with investments made in new ships which have been built, under the provisions of the Merchant Marine Act of 1928, during the last several years—all of which reflects the progressive spirit and confidence in the future of our national shipping enterprise."

"It is this pioneering spirit, so typical of the West, that makes for ultimate success."

"As a result of the severe slump in world trade the shipping industry was the first to feel its effects and, probably, will be the last to benefit from a return to normal conditions which, it is hoped, are near at hand. It is then that the efforts put forth during these lean times will show beneficial results by having available the equipment and facilities to acquire a fair share of the increased business."

News of the Coast Guard

Because of reduced appropriations Coast Guard destroyers will not make the annual visit to the Gulf of Mexico for gunnery exercises, it was announced at Headquarters this week.

Funds available for fuel have been greatly slashed and nothing more than a minimum of cruising is to be authorized during the remainder of the year. As a result the three divisions of destroyers will carry out target practice in New England waters, nearby to home ports. The schedule and time for the long range and short range battle practices is not yet definitely decided, but will be held sometime between the middle of January and the first of April.

During the past few years, the destroyers would leave northern waters, one division at a time, and would sail into the Gulf for exercises off Egmont Key, near St. Petersburg. It is estimated that the merchants of that city will lose more than a half of million dollars because of the order.

The destroyers are: Cassin, Conyngham, Herndon, Wainwright, Wilkes, Badger, George E. Davis, Tucker, Wood, Welborn C. Semmes, McDougal, Porter, Shaw, Upshur, Abel P.

Mrs. H. G. Hamlet, wife of the Commandant, will be the sponsor of the new Coast Guard vessel Argo, which is to be launched on the ways of the John H. Mathis Co., in Camden, N. J., Nov. 12. The Argo is a 165 foot patrol boat.

Ranking officers of the Coast Guard, as well as prominent citizens of Camden are expected to be present. Admiral Hamlet, who is rapidly regaining his strength after his recent operation, will probably be on hand, it is said.

Seven temporary ensigns, who upon graduation from civil engineering colleges were conducted into the service a year ago for engineering duty only, have been found qualified for regular duty as line officers by a board convened at Headquarters and will be issued regular commissions, providing they pass the professional examinations.

The officers who will go up for examination Nov. 14, are as follows: Ens. James A. Allen, jr.; Ens. Joe G. Lawrence; Ens. George A. Farnsworth; Ens. Clovis Breton, jr.; Ens. Alvin H. Griffin; Ens. Frank C. Curro, and Ens. Robert S. Lecky.

Unusual honor was paid to the Itasca, upon her arrival in Honolulu returning from duty with the Bering Sea Patrol Force. A special program was broadcast from station KGO, in Honolulu, which was picked by the Itasca's radio before reaching port. Capt. J. D. Willson, USN, and prominent citizens of the city welcomed the officers and men of the vessel.

Launching of the flying boat Arcturus, scheduled for last Saturday was postponed until Nov. 3. The ceremonies will take place at Dundalk, Md., with Miss Marian Stone, daughter of Lt. Comdr. E. F. Stone, USCG, acting as sponsor.

The following officers have been ordered to the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., for instruction in aviation: Lt. E. K. Rhodes, Lt. J. A. Kerrins, Lt. (jg) P. S. Lyons, Lt. (jg) L. H. Morins. They are to report Nov. 14.

Orders to Officers

General Fuqua's Address

necessitated organizational changes and the future promises no relief on this score. I am much more interested in our armament and training than in our organization which at best remains in the field of academic discussion."

The question of assignment of officers to schools and to duty with troops was touched on by the General.

"Many more of you desire the Command and General Staff School or the Army War College than the quota will cover," he said. "For these reasons the War Department prescribes that we may recommend only officers of excellent or superior rating. There is a study now before the Chief of Staff for consideration, re eligibility for these schools, which should be published shortly. It will affect the next classes."

"Many of us prefer troop duty to any other assignment. To these I bring encouraging news in that the new allotment of officers prescribes that 7 or 8 more officers per Infantry regiment will return to troops. Duty with troops is moving to the top of the ladder of assignments. We have the support of the Chief of Staff now, especially in so far as field officers are concerned. Only outstanding field officers who have demonstrated their efficiency, will be given command duty with troops. More than ever will your demonstrated ability in this field be the stepping stone to higher and more important selection."

In deciding upon assignments, General Fuqua said, the officers preference card is followed whenever possible.

"In assigning officers," he continued, "we have to give cost of transportation special consideration. However, don't write in offering to pay your way to a distant station. It will be disapproved. There have been six examples of this recently. Obviously it would be a vicious system to allow the financial status of an officer to get him a change to a distant station."

"Gentlemen, one of the splendid characteristics of our Army is the fact that every officer firmly believes in the greatness of his own branch" the General said later. "We of the Infantry are particularly proud of the outstanding performance of our branch in the last war. Just this week I received a study that should be a matter of pride to every Infantryman. It was a study on decorations. It showed that Infantrymen received 4,434 of the 5,989 D.S.C.'s issued in the World War—79.1%—and 83 out of the 89 Congressional Medals of Honor awarded the Army—93.3%. It is also interesting to note that the figures taken from the report of the Secretary of War for 1926, indicated that 92.4% of all enlisted men killed in action were Infantry soldiers of the Army or Marines acting as such."

"Altho the Infantry formed the bulk of troops in France this per cent of casualties and of awards for gallantry in action far exceeds our quota. It is due to the fact that in battle our mission is one of special danger and honor. This was fully realized by our Commander-in-Chief in the World War, General Pershing, from whom I received a letter last week. He states 'With my very best wishes to the Infantry, which is and will always remain the backbone of the Army.'"

"We are not getting medals now, Gentlemen, but I believe I have painted enough of a picture of our modern Army and Infantry to show that we have been, and are making progress. Regardless of our assignments or duties, peace time affords opportunities for distinctive service or, as I have expressed it in the letters to all Infantry commanders, 'signal accomplishments'."

"Let me say that the mission of the Army in war and therefore that of the Infantry still remains the defeat of the enemy's field army. It is the Infantry's battle objective. Therefore, the Infantry must be so organized, trained, armed and equipped, that it may be employed tactically in offensive or defensive action, permanent or temporary, shifting from one phase of the combat to the other; by day or by night, under all conditions of weather, in the burning heat of the tropics or in the blinding snows of the frozen northlands, over all varieties of terrain, movable by any form of transportation over small or great tracts of land or water, to be able to take cover, to beat down enemy resistance, to gain, consolidate and hold ground, and in the end, if necessary engage in hand to hand combat with the enemy.

"Our progress since the war is the result of the intelligent, painstaking, loyal endeavor of our officers throughout the country; however, I feel that the fountain source of their technical efficiency, their professional zeal, and their Infantry spirit is created or immeasurably increased right here."

"Here, at the Infantry School by General King and the officers and troops of this school and right now, before completing my remarks, I wish to pay special tribute to the troop units of all branches of the service whose faithful and efficient performance of duty here, whether in demonstrations, construction work or 1001 jobs, day by day, and month by month have made this school possible."

National Guard Convention

The National Guard Association of the United States assembled in convention at Norfolk, Va., last week, decided to make a fight for deficiency appropriations for drill and field training pay at the next session of Congress.

Brig. Gen. Claude V. Birkhead of San Antonio, Tex., the Commanding General of the 61st Field Artillery Brigade, Texas National Guard, was elected president of the Association at the conclusion of the three day meeting, one of the most successful ever held. The registration of delegates at the convention numbered 361, with practically every state represented. Maj. Gen. Matthew A. Tingley, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, Commanding General of the 34th National Guard Division, was selected as vice president. Brig. Gen. Milton B. McLean, Adjutant General of Kansas, and Brig. Gen. Fred A. Waterbury, NYNG-ret, were reelected treasurer and secretary, respectively.

In deciding to press for a deficiency appropriation, it is funds for airplanes, ammunition, ordnance equipment and pay for caretakers that is sought, for funds for drill and field training pay will be secured by transfers from these appropriations if no deficiency is obtained. However, though drill pay is not imperiled, the National Guard Association decided to fight for the deficiency appropriation.

In view of the trouble that has arisen over the practice in the past of always looking forward to a deficiency bill to carry out their program, the Association adopted a resolution urging that all funds for upkeep of the National Guard be provided in the regular appropriation bill.

A $4,613,000 camp construction program was endorsed by the Association and the executive council was directed to prepare the proposal for presentation to Congress. The Association also recommended that an armory for the District of Columbia National Guard be constructed.

Some discussion was had over the size of State staffs, many officers expressing the view that there were too many officers now attached to the staff. The executive council was instructed to make a study of the proposal and report at the next convention.

The convention went on record as favoring reduction of the number of Sergeant-Instructors. It was decided to recommend to the War Department that the number be reduced gradually, over a period of years so that eventually there will be but one Sergeant-Instructor for each regiment or separate battalion. This would mean a reduction from about 505 to about 260. Reductions would be made in the 4th grade, under the Association's proposal.

The executive council was directed to cooperate with the Militia Bureau with a view of cutting down the amount of medical treatment of National Guard personnel at summer camps in another resolution.

Request was made that the War Department amend Army Regulations to permit those of the original thirteen states having troops in the Revolutionary War to place streamers on their colors indicating such service. Another resolution favored the erection at Washington, D. C., of a memorial to the members of the National Guard who have fallen in all wars.

The convention went on record as opposed to the present system of apportioning candidates to West Point from the National Guard to the end that the vacancies may be awarded in proportion to the enlisted strength of the National Guard of the various states. Another resolution directed the executive council to press vigorously for the enactment of the National Guard of the United States bill.

Brig. Gen. Robert J. Travis, retiring president of the Association, was lauded for the progress made during the past year. Maj. Gen. George E. Leach, Chief of the Militia Bureau, was also commended for the conduct of his administration.

Chicago was selected for the next meeting of the Association, the exact date next year to be set later by the executive council.

Ft. McPherson, Ga.—Maj. Gen. Edw. L. King, 4th Corps Area Commander, held a conference of the Adjutant Generals of the eight Southeastern states and the Commanding Generals of the 30th and 31st Divisions, National Guard, on Monday, Oct. 24. Officers present were Brig. Gen. Charles H. Cox, of Atlanta, Ga.; Brig. Gen. Hartley A. Moon, Montgomery, Ala.; Brig. Gen. Vivian Collins, St. Augustine, Fla.; Brig. Gen. Raymond H. Fleming, New Orleans, La.; Brig. Gen. Thomas J. Grayson, Jackson, Miss.; Brig. Gen. James C. Dozier, Columbia, S. C.; Brig. Gen. J. Van B. Metts, Raleigh, N. C., and Brig. Gen. William C. Boyd, Nashville, Tenn., as well as Maj. Gen. A. H. Blanding, Tampa, Fla., commander of the 31st Division, and Maj. Gen. H. D. Russell, Macon, Ga., commander of the 30th Division.

These officers arrived at Ft. McPherson at 9:00 A.M., and were met at the entrance of the fort by the Post Commander, Brig. Gen. George H. Estes, with a guard of honor, and a salute of thirteen guns was fired in their honor. At nine-fifteen they were welcomed at Corps Area Headquarters by General King and his staff, and at nine-thirty the conference, dealing on matters pertaining to supplies and training of the National Guard, began. During the noon recess the visiting officers were the guests of General King at luncheon. After the afternoon session the visiting officers, with members of the Corps Area Staff, were entertained at an informal tea by Lt. Col. B. M. Bailey, FA, Officer in Charge of National Guard Affairs in the Fourth Corps Area.

Ft. Sill, Okla.—A most encouraging response to the efforts of the faculty of the Field Artillery School to promote non-resident instruction has been noted in the October 11th issue of the Ohio National Guard bulletin, which reports that for the second quarter of the year, ending October 30, 1932, 54 officers and 193 enlisted men were enrolled in the Extension Course of the School. This total of 247 exceeds even that of the infantry, a much larger branch, who stood second with 225. The school authorities expressed gratification at the interest shown.

Uphold Auto Travel Allowance

Provisions of the Economy Act suspending mileage during the current year do not preclude an officer from receiving an allowance of three cents a mile while traveling by privately owned automobile, the Comptroller General ruled this week.

Presented with the claim of Maj. Freeman W. Bowley, FA, DOL, USA, for reimbursement for travel from Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, to his duty station at Corvallis, Ore., Comptroller McCarl decided that the Act of May 29, 1928 is still in effect. That law provided that officers of the services "traveling under competent orders which entitle them to transportation or transportation and subsistence as distinguished from mileage, who, under regulations prescribed by the head of the department concerned, travel by privately owned conveyance shall be entitled, in lieu of transportation by the shortest usually traveled route now authorized by law to be furnished in kind, to a money allowance at the rate of three cents per mile for the same distance."

The Economy Act, the Comptroller said, "makes no change in the money allowance of 3 cents per mile authorized by the amendment of May 29, 1928, to officers traveling by privately-owned conveyance, under competent orders which entitle them to transportation or transportation and subsistence as distinguished from mileage." Accordingly, you are advised that payment is authorized on the voucher." Comptroller General A-44497, Oct. 18, 1932.

Class B Procedure

It is likely that existing Class B procedure will be subjected to vigorous attack when Congress reassembles, the occasion for the immediate criticism being the suggestion to reduce the commissioned personnel of the Army by means of the Class B procedure. Recently Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell in a letter to Chairman McSwain, of the House Committee on Military Affairs said:

"The columns of the Service journals represent you as (1) favoring a reduction in the commissioned personnel of the Army (2) by means of existing Class-B procedure. Upon the first question, which belongs to the realm of politico-military policy, I have no desire to speak. But the second—that the officers to be eliminated as least efficient shall be determined by existing Class-B procedure—involves vital justice to the officers concerned, to the Army and to the country. The means of reduction is of more importance than reduction itself. To apply existing class-B methods would be to resort to the most nefarious procedure ever known to the Army of the United States, with consequences so evil as to be of disastrous effect for years to come upon the fighting efficiency of the Army. If it is agreeable to you, but not otherwise, I should like to prepare and present for your consideration a brief upon this matter, to which I hope you have not committed yourself. If I did not believe you to be genuinely, honestly, and intelligently interested in means for improvement of the Army's efficiency I should not make this request."

To which the Chairman replied:

"You may be sure that I shall be not only bound in duty, but also highly pleased to accord you a hearing in connection with any legislation proposing to amend the procedure known as Class B."

General Ansell states that the Brief will be ready by the time Congress convenes and that it will be devoted to showing that the Class B statute at best is ill-adapted to its purpose and that departmental administration has perverted the statute from its object of eliminating the unfit to an expensive morale-disturbing machinery for "getting" those who have incurred the displeasure of superiors in trivial or personal affairs.

"Trade" offer denied

ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL but beyond that I know nothing about it."

There the matter rests at present, but all indications point to a thorough probing into this effort by parties at present unrevealed to have Congress adopt under the guise of seriously considered legislation a bill drawn to the satisfaction of pacifism and politics and fostered by under-cover "trades." It has been suggested that such an investigation would best be conducted by the Senate, particularly in view of the fact that that body is called upon by the House to approve such legislation.
